UPYE (International Project Management Institute) was established in 2010 in order to extend the Project Management knowledge in Turkey. As an NGO and a non-profit organization UPYE’s vision is to be an internationally recognized Turkish organization which shapes the future of project management globally.

UPYE was established by 10 co-founders with background and expertise from different industries which include construction, real estate, information technology, energy, marketing and nanotechnology, and currently it has more than 300 online professional and student members.

One of the major points that distinguish UPYE from other similar organizations is that the solution and event partners of UPYE are universities. UPYE completed many seminars and organizations in the last 5 years and Bogazici University was the host and the major supporter of those events. In addition, Ozyegin University was another university that organized an important together event with UPYE about real estate industry in Turkey in 2014.

“Project Management from Different Perspectives”, “Construction Cost Management”, “Integration and Communication Management in Construction Industry”, “Institutionalization and Human Resources Management in Construction Industry” and “The Past, Today and Future of Real Estate Industry in Turkey” were some of the major events the UPYE successfully completed.

INTERVIEW WITH AHMET N. TASPINAR

Can you introduce yourself to the PM World Journal readers please?
My name is Ahmet N. Taspinar, PMP, REP. I have been a PMI member since 1977.

Can you explain your background and your career?
I am a Turkish - American, with a Master’s Degree in Civil Engineering and an MBA. My project management experience includes 40 years as project team member, leader and manager in the petrochemical, energy and information systems sectors.
Since my retirement from Pacific Gas & Electric Company of San Francisco, CA, in 1993 I have worked as a trainer / consultant in the US, Mexico, Turkey, Germany, Azerbaijan and South Korea.

Can you explain a little about your project management experience as volunteer?
Since I joined PMI in 1977 I have been on the founders team of the New England and Mexico City Chapters; I also have worked as volunteer for those plus the Houston, Northern California (now SF Bay Area) and Silicon valley Chapters. I was one of the founders of IPYD, which started out as the PMI Istanbul potential Chapter.

Can you explain a little more about IPYD? Which activities and ongoing projects are done by IPYD?
IPYD is the largest and most active of the 4 project management volunteer groups in Turkey. Its activities include DYNAMICS 20XX, the annual global project management symposium, held in Istanbul with speaker and attendee participation from Europe, the Americas and Asia, monthly meetings to present topics of interest to the project management community of Turkey, and free coaching sessions to people preparing to take the PMP Exam. IPYD also collaborates with other PM associations in Turkey to celebrate the annual global PM Day every November.
IPYD manages all their developmental work as projects and programs, with chartering, planning and controlling carried out in compliance with the PMI processes and policies. The association is run by a board of seven members, plus six reserve members, elected every two years in May.

➤ How do you see IPYD in the year 2015?

Planning for DYNAMICS 2015, scheduled to be held on April 16 - 17, 2015, is underway with the location, participation terms, and the organization contractor already established. The project team, formed in June 2014 has completed the development of the event website, and is nearing finalization of sponsors, speakers and the event program. Our targets are to have 40 speakers from at least five different countries, and an attendance of 400+

Professional Development has been a leading area of activity for IPYD since its beginnings. Under the direction of one of the association Vice Presidents training, informational meetings and coaching / mentoring sessions are being held in the three largest cities of Turkey. Plans are on the boards for extending activities to other cities of Turkey.

➤ What is your opinion about project management activities in Turkey?

Since the initial attempts to bring the voice of PMI to Turkey in 1995, formal project management processes have taken root in the financial, engineering, telecommunications and IT sectors of the country. However many family-owned businesses, particularly in the construction sector, lack the desire to adhere to the PMI principles, but their numbers are gradually declining as younger generations take control.

An encouraging development is the growing interest of the public sector in formal project management, which started in 2010, after the global congress of IPMA was held in Istanbul.

➤ Thank you Mr. Taşpınar.
Can you introduce yourself to the PM World Journal readers please?

Born and raised in Istanbul, Turkey. Technology and management have been my central interests since my early career where I have pursued my education to its highest level accordingly. I graduated from Mechanical Engineering School of Robert College, Istanbul, Turkey which was the oldest American College abroad. I earned BS. and MS. in ME in 1963 and 1964 respectively. I pursued my graduate studies at Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana on Fulbright scholarship and received PhD. Degree from its Mechanical Engineering Department in thermal science in 1967. In line with my personal objectives of entrepreneurial activities, I attended Harvard University, Cambridge Massachusetts on United Nations Scholarship to study on “Developing Countries and Industrial Projects” and received MPA in 1972.

Can you explain your background and your career?

Technology, science, research and project development have been areas where I always seek new opportunities to get involved with. I have tried academic career first; taught in universities in the USA and Turkey. However, the excitement of entrepreneurial activities attracted me more towards such projects where major portion of my career has revolved around entrepreneurship. My connection with academia has been always alive and fed me with new ideas and methods. I was the director of Foreign Investments Section in State Planning Organization of Turkish Republic from 1968 thru 1971. This overlaps with the Second Five Year Development Plan which indicated “Industrial Development of Turkey” as the first priority. Foreign industrial investments were key elements. I was involved in the initiation of almost all major automotive industrial projects as well as its supporting supply chain industries. Since 1972, I have worked as an industrial entrepreneur involved either as consultant, advisor and/or founder CEO of many industrial establishments in Turkey.
Can you explain a little about your project management experience as volunteer?

Almost all of my career I have been involved with project management. Until 1989 when I learned about PMI, my field work experience and personal skills had been the base of my project management methodology. I became a member of PMI in 1990 and a strong advocate of PMI Guidelines. My company which provided computer assisted application services in management and engineering, became a center of excellence in project management. We provided a complete and online project management service offering with then the best professional project management software ARTEMIS running on an extended DECSYSTEM (Digital Equipment) platform. Construction companies were our first customers. We introduced PMI methods and provided project management service with ARTEMIS on DIGITAL EQUIPMENT platform to leading construction companies such as TEKFEN, DOĞUŞ, ENKA and KUTLUTAŞ. Our team included expat members from the USA with extensive experience in project management. Implementation was not easy. The new rules and discipline of computer data structure had been accepted either reluctantly or discarded by the field people in those well established companies. Nonetheless, the difficult, but unavoidable introduction of project management in Turkey was made. Newly established software groups became more enthusiastic of this wave and continued their support as extended users even today.

Can you explain a little more about IPYD? Which activities and ongoing projects are done by IPYD?

In 1990s, new ideas about implementing computer applications were being introduced in many areas. A lot of people were excited about starting such endeavors. It was in this environment where I met my dear friend Haluk Doğançay. His company was involved mainly in construction management and he was also using ARTEMIS. We had neighboring offices and became the “Founding Fathers” of IPYD. After hopeful, but disappointing events for almost seven years, we established IPYD officially in 1997. Having the honor of being the first Chairman, I have passed the flag to my colleagues in the first general assembly. Our aim was the same as PMI; having Project Management accepted as a Profession with well-defined skills in line with professional certification. In this context, I hoped that the first local chapter of PMI could be established in Istanbul, Turkey immediately. But legal requirements and lack of enthusiastic support by our members prevented this objective from becoming reality.

Thank you Mr. Yeyinmen.

I am Sertug Yılmaz and I work as project manager at TAV IT Project Management office. I am graduated from the Baskent University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Management Information Systems. I earned Cisco certified Network professional (CCNP) in 2011 and PMP in 2013. Even though I work in a high technology environment, I still love studying, learning new things and new challenges.

Can you explain a little about your background and your career?

I started working at TAV Airports as special airport management systems administrator in 2005. I was working for projects in order to increase customer satisfaction and software development projects to increase company revenue. By this way, I had the opportunity to manage several projects in different airports for 5 years. Working with complex environment helped me to increase both my communication skills revolving around different cultures and project management ability. While investigating on projects, I saw there is much more about technology itself or management practices. During that time, I became familiar with Project Management Institute which offers valuable lessons for project managers and became a certified Project Management Professional (PMP). Finally, I was installed in PMO and began my journey to company success. At the moment, I am responsible for managing all projects which are take place in my portfolio, coaching for other PMs, helping projects to meet their budget and customer management.

Can you give more information about your project management experience?

I am a project management professional with 7+ years of experience in airport systems. I have participated in different international and domestic airport projects. Around the world, my company provides many supportive IT services in software development, network systems and project management. Over the years, I have gained extensive experience in IT project management. Especially on my current role, I have responsibilities like managing a pool of projects for establishing strategically important company objectives. By this way I have gained experience on portfolio analysis, budget planning and motivating people for the delivery of shared goals.

- What has changed in your life after having PMP certification? Is it worth taking it?

I have been enjoying every moment as project manager. I would like to say that, in the case of project management there is a big difference in doing something with knowledge and without knowledge. Once I learned good project management and started applying it to my life, I started achieving more.

- Thank you Mr. Yılmaz.
