It already started in Argentina the most important Congress about Project Management of the region, named PMI Tour Cono Sur 2015.

The PMI Tour Cono Sur is a Regional Congress that's takes place in multiple cities during successive dates, helping the synergies between the different PMI chapters of the region, allowing both speakers and participants to attend several consecutive events.

The first edition of this Tour took place in 2005, involving PMI Chapters of Buenos Aires, Argentina, Santiago, Chile y Montevideo, Uruguay.

This is the first time in the history of this PMI Tour Cono Sur event that Cordoba city, Argentina is included in the schedule, having developed with success during October 29th. The congress had excellent speakers with a participation of more than 250 professionals and students, which expect to have a PMI Chapter in the city really soon.

Congress ended with the lecture given by former NBA basketball player Fabricio Oberto. This charismatic basketball player captivated the audience explaining his learning experience while included on a high performance team, the San Antonio Spurs coached by Gregg Popovich.

Thursday, November 5th, it took place the PMI Tour Cono Sur congress of Buenos Aires city in the neighborhood of Recoleta, with excellent lectures too. The keynote speaker was PMI Board of Directors Antonio Nieto Rodriguez who talked about "The Value of Project Management."

The PMI Tour Cono Sur congress of Nuevo Cuyo city in Mendoza will be on Friday, November 6th at the National University of Cuyo and Saturday, November 7th for an outdoor activity. This event will also feature leading international speakers and like every year will culminate in a team building activity outdoors.
